Subject: Campaign Review and Recommendation for Growing New Customers

Hi,

I've finished reviewing the results of the one-week campaign, assessing performance across both message styles (Campaign A's informal tone and Campaign B's salesy tone), all three channels (Email, Instagram, and Web Banner), and both new and existing customers. While Campaign B drove more total revenue, the picture flips for new customers: Campaign A outperformed B on every channel, and Email + Campaign A was the strongest combination, generating $2,124 in new-customer sales versus $1,382 for Campaign B on the same channel. Campaign A also drew 63% of its sales from new buyers, and Email was the widest-reaching channel overall ($7,909 in total sales), so it's the best vehicle to scale the winning message.

Based on this, I'd recommend we prioritize Email + Campaign A to grow new-customer sales by increasing spend on that combination and testing a follow-up message, while keeping Campaign B to drive revenue from existing customers. I've attached a slide summarizing the findings, and I'm happy to walk through it whenever it works for you.

Best,

Fariba Kazi
